2025 Small Business Survey

Small Business Reality Check:

One in four small business owners are in survival mode, but adapting.

KeyBank's 2025 Small Business Survey found that nearly a quarter (23%) of small business owners say they are stuck in survival mode as economic uncertainties persist. Still, they are focused on strengthening their financial foundations to ensure not just sustainability, but also growth. Despite the variables owners face, almost half (48%) of businesses either met or exceeded expectations over the past 12 months - a true testament to the creativity, adaptability, and determination driving today's small business owners.

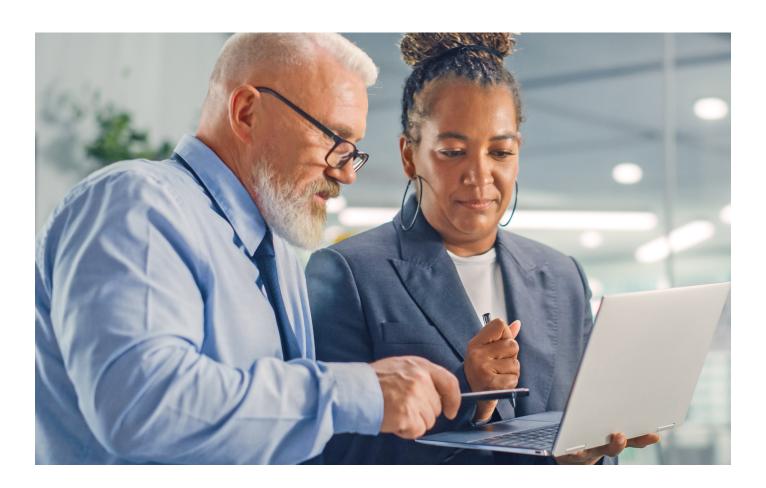

46% of small business owners say they are certain they could cover one month of operating expenses if an emergency arises, slightly down from this time last year (49%).

In response to rising costs and tariffs, a quarter of small business owners (25%) are increasing prices for customers.

50% of small business owners say their top concern is inflation and rising costs — far outpacing things like competition (33%), cash flow (25%), and labor shortages and hiring challenges (22%).

With major policy changes on the horizon, small business owners feel very concerned, but confident in their ability to adapt.

When asked how federal legislation changes coming in the next five months will impact their operations, small business owners said...

Unsure – I don't yet understand how these changes may apply to my business.

Not concerned at all -1 do not believe these changes will affect my business.

Not very concerned — I expect little impact on my business.

Somewhat concerned – I anticipate moderate impact but am still evaluating the details.

Very concerned – I believe these changes could significantly affect my operations or profitability.

40%

of small business owners feel confident to make key, informed decisions amid today's economic and policy uncertainty — though they do admit they might be second-guessing at times.

Resiliency is on the forefront of owners' minds. When asked what would make them feel the most resilient moving into 2026, they said...

Having six+ months of operating expenses in reserve (41%).

A good night's sleep (30%).

Regular conversations with their business banker (21%).

Policy changes have been top of mind for everyone, but especially for small business owners. The three things they've adjusted in the last three months in reaction to the current environment are:

Budget

Business plan or strategy

Cost structure

Fraud and cybersecurity protection tops owners' priority lists, especially regarding payment fraud (41%), phishing and email scams (27%), and identity theft (26%).

As owners seek out conversations with their business banker, they'd particularly value advisory support for managing cash flow and working capital (33%), financial planning and forecasting (33%), and tax strategy and planning (31%).
